“How’s your walk with the Lord,” she boldly asked a few years back. When she asked she was stern as if she was on a mission directly from above...but at the end of her question she smiled - almost giggled as if she didn’t believe she had just done that. Thank you for that, my friend. Erika was passionate, and obedient to God’s voice, but did so showing love and compassion. I will miss our prayer warrior- but it’s not goodbye, I will see you again someday. Diana C.

“ I remember a woman who was always smiling and who was most happy when she gave to others. I witnessed this at Christian her nephew's graduation weekend. When she presented the sweetest basket to Rosie and Homer at their son's graduation and presented Christian with I don't know how many 2.00 bills they had been collecting for him. You could see the joy on her face when she gave the gifts to them. You could tell she was so proud of her nephew, sister, and brother in law. I not only seen her joy that day but other days as well when she was around her family. She was always steadfast in her faith and did not waiver. She did the Lord's work. I can see Jesus standing with his arms opened wide, when she entered the kingdom of heaven, well done good and faithful servant. She lives forever and we will see the joy again.
